DA KATZ AWARDS GRANTS TO 34 RECIPIENTS FOR THE QUEENS COMMUNITY YOUTH DEVELOPMENT AND CRIME PREVENTION PROGRAM

Queens District Attorney Melinda Katz announced $2.75 million in grant funding to 34 community-based organizations for the second phase of her office's Community Youth Development and Crime Prevention Project (CYDCPP). The District Attorney's initiative, originally launched in July 2021, aims to provide youth activities and wraparound services to help prevent crime and keep young people out of the criminal justice system.

District Attorney Katz said: "This program has proven to be a resounding success, with more than 14,000 individual youth participants gaining crucial hands-on training and guidance on conflict resolution, civic engagement, mental health support, STEM programs, college readiness workshops and much more. The recipients of the funding in 2021 have helped to empower our youth while increasing public safety in this borough. I look forward to the implementation of even more wraparound services provided to the young people of Queens through this latest round of funding by my office."

The goals of CYDCPP are to facilitate a collaborative and community-driven approach to foster positive relationships between communities and law enforcement, reduce youth crime, improve self-confidence among young people, increase exposure to positive adult role models, as well as improve academic performance and school attendance.

Following the completion of the two-year based grants in 2023, DA Katz announced a new request for proposals (RFP) earlier this year and the selected recipients were notified last month.

The program will consist of 21 organizations that were previously funded in 2021, as well as 13 new community-based organizations focused on providing socio-emotional learning, workforce development training, school supplies, SAT and homework prep, college tours, and entrepreneurship business strategies for Queens-based youth and their families.
